A cynic might dismiss these comments, pointing out that we are unlikely to include negative feedback – and who knows? There might be 10 critical comments for every positive one. So on the next page we have summarised the feedback from every feedback form we received at each of two seminars.

We have also included a blank feedback form so you can see how these results were generated, although in the second example the client used their own feedback form, which resulted in a different format for that summary.
